EXCEPTIONAL CITIZEN AND CHRISTIAN CHARACTER

GOOD WOMAN PASSES TO HER REWARD

Mrs. J. J. Welch died Sunday morning at 3 o'clock at her home on East Washington Street.

The friends of Mrs. J. J. Welch or "Aunt Lizzie," as she was more familiarly known to many, were pained to learn of her death which occurred last Sunday morning, following a two months' serious illness. One month ago the deceased went to Baltimore in company with Dr. S. S. Coe to consult a specialist who gave very little encouragement for a prolonged life. Returning Mrs. Welch gradually grew worse until the end. She was the widow of the late Jasper J. Welch, one of High Point's most prominent and prosperous citizens and herself was one of High Point's oldest original inhabitants.

Only one child survives, Mrs. J. W. Harris of this city; several brothers, Messrs. W. P. F. M. and Robt. L. Pickett, all influential citizens of High Point; the sisters are Miss Lou Pickett and Mrs. T. T. Ferree.

The deceased was a prominent member of the M. P. Church and gave much of her time and money to this church and the M. P. Orphanage and she will be greatly missed by all. She was a life-long friend and neighbor of the editor's family and held in great respect and love, and the loss falls as a personal one.

The deceased was born in Davidson county on July 23, 1844, and was, therefore, nearing 75 years of age. She was the daughter of Samuel and Asenith Pickett. For 39 years Mrs. Welch was a resident of High Point and was one of the leading members of the First Methodist Protestant church, being deeply interested in all branches of the church's activities. She was a member of the board of trustees of the Methodist Protestant children's home and was one of the largest contributors toward the support of that institution.

Mrs. Welch took an active part in community affairs. In addition to her church work she was a member of the High Point chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, being the oldest member of the chapter.

Funeral services over the remains were conducted from the First Methodist Protestant church Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the pastor, Dr. George R. Brown, and other ministers of the city.

The active pallbearers were A. M. Rankin, J. Elwood Cox, C. C. Robbins, J. Edward Kirkman, H. S. Garrett, Ed. L. Ragan, Dr. J. J. Hamilton and J. F. Farris. The honorary pallbearers were H. A. Moffitt, R. H. Shaw, H. A. Mills, O. E. Kearns, R. R. Ragan, J. D. Koonitz, J. H. Frichard, N. W. Beeson, N. E. Allred, J. S. Welborn, W. L. Stamey, A. E. Alexander, Dr. Dred Peacock, W. J. Armfield, W. H. Ragan, J. M. Millikan, J. Norman Wills, George T. Penny, R. T. Ross, John C. Siceloff, J. A. Clinard and J. A. Tussey. Interment was made in the family plot in Oakwood cemetery.

Rev. A. G. Dixon, former pastor of the M. P. church here, preached the funeral and others taking part were Revs. Rowland W. Brown, Whittaker, W. A. Lambeth.

The floral offerings were the prettiest and largest collection the writer ever saw at any funeral in this city, attesting the love and esteem in which this sainted woman was held. Mrs. Welch was universally loved. She was the Good Samaritan to all. She was one of the strongest pillars in the M. P. church here was the prime mover in its establishment and returned to live to see a new church take the place of the present one. She gave liberally of her means to it and was known as "Big Mama" to all the children of the M. P. Orphanage, located near this city. Her contributions to this institution and her personal kindnesses and helpfulness will never be forgotten. The loss falls heavily on both institutions and her city.

People from the surrounding country attended the funeral and there was a great crowd of sorrowing friends to pay their last silent tribute to this good mother in Israel.

Mrs. Welch was universally loved as a noble Christian woman and a good neighbor. So intimately did her neighbors and friends love her that to them she was "Big Mama." There was never a call from the sick or death bed she did not heed if possible to go and she was counted one of the best "doctors" anywhere. The world has been made the better for her living and it saddens the heart of the writer to know that her frequent visits "across the street" are at an end. Peace to her noble ashes.

SECOND WARD CANDIDATE ANNOUNCEMENT.

To the Voters of High Point:

I have been urged by a number of citizens with promise of support to make the race for councilman from the second ward in the forthcoming election and since I have decided to be a candidate for that office, respectfully ask the support of the people of High Point.

I have lived in High Point for 30 years and expect to die here because I love this city better than any other place I know of on this earth. I do not desire the office for the honor there is to it but to be of benefit to mankind and to my part to make High Point a good clean, healthy, progressive 20th century city without oppressing its people or its interests.

I believe in running a city just as efficiently and with as much foresight as one would run his own business; taking care to make every dollar of taxes count for the welfare of the city in general.

I am aligned with no personal or political faction, have made no promises and will not (only for the good of the city). I shall let no one do my thinking for me and shall at all times vote my conscientious sentiments in all matters coming up. I believe I am fair enough to recognize and approve the best things whether it comes from Gentile or Jew, Democrat or Republican, white or black. In other words, I know no faction or creed in dealing with matters concerning the best interests of High Point.

If you think well of my candidacy I will appreciate your support; if not vote for the other man and there will be no hard feelings.

A Real Big Tanker Coming

One of Uncle Sam's fighting tanks will visit High Point during the Victory Loan drive, April 23, and remain one day. This is one of the tanks that helped to whip the dirty Hun.

J. Elwood Cox, district chairman of the loan drive, was informed in a letter from Joseph G. Brown, of Raleigh, state chairman. There will be three American tanks in the state during the campaign and each will have to follow a definite schedule appearing at each town in its order. The schedules are so made as to allow two days to each engagement; the tank will arrive at a particular town one day and be utilized there during the following day then it will reach the next station on the following day. In other words, one day is to be counted as that of arrival and the other exploitation and display.

Each tank will be accompanied by a crew consisting of one driver and one mechanic. All stunts, advertising displays and other features and uses are left at the discretion of local leaders. Speeches and actual solicitations will be conducted and Tank Day is expected to be the big one of the entire campaign.

The tank's coming will prove a big event to High Point.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT ON THOMASVILLE ROAD.

Claude Hauser, of Winston-Salem, is dead and Chester Marshall, also of that city, is painfully injured as a result of a motorcycle accident that occurred just on the northern outskirts of Thomasville Thursday night shortly before 10 o'clock. The injured men were hurried to this city and placed in the sanitarium for treatment but Hauser died shortly before 11 o'clock, never regaining consciousness. Marshall's hurts consist of a bruised leg and lacerations about the body.

According to eye witnesses to the accident, the men sought to take the rather sharp curve leaving Thomasville while traveling at an excessive rate of speed, the result being that the machine and side car turned turtle. Hauser was riding the motorcycle proper and Marshall was a passenger in the side car, the latter being thrown less heavily than Hauser, whose skull was crushed.

The men left Winston-Salem early Thursday evening and went to Greensboro to attend a carnival. They then decided to come to High Point and visit a relative, a Mr. Shipwash, a resident of Grimes street. Next they selected Thomasville to be visited and had paid this call and were returning to High Point to proceed to their homes at Winston-Salem when the accident occurred.

Hauser was about 35 years of age and was unmarried. He made his home with his mother on 13th street, Winston-Salem. Marshall was a resident of 508 Eleventh street, Winston-Salem. It was not learned whether he is married or single. The men were brought to the city immediately after the accident by J. M. Hoover, who was nearby when the motorcycle turned turtle.

It is surprising to many that so little interest has been manifested in the forthcoming municipal election when so much is at stake.

PRESIDENT IS RUNNING THE WHOLE BUSINESS.

Raleigh, April 10.—Champ Clark, former speaker of the house of representatives spending tonight in Raleigh, declared that "the league of nations plan as finally amended, will satisfy every reasonable human being. The league of nations is not a new idea; it is as old as the nations themselves. I think President Wilson is running the whole business over there. After a slight pause the Missourian said: "He ought to, and that's all there is about it. The league of nations, the league can be discussed in two minutes."

Questioned as to universal military training, Mr. Clark said: "Every person on earth with any sense who does not make money out of war wants peace and eternal peace." He expressed himself as "dead against universal training for America," which he prophesied will "never come." "There is not a chance of that program being adopted. Ask any soldier back from France what he thinks of it and he will tell you he's against it. I ask all the folks who come in my office about it and they all are opposed to it."

OLD SOLDIER TELLS OF THE STIR- RING DAYS OF LONG AGO.

April 9th, 54 years ago, Robt. E. Lee surrendered to General Grant. A. M. Idol, of this city, tells of incidents before and at the time of surrender as follows:

On Sunday, April 2, 1865, we fought the terrible battle known as Five Forks where General Grant flanked us and broke our lines, causing us to retreat. We started to retreat about 4 o'clock that afternoon. Our command reached the Appomattox about dark that evening. Our corps, commanded by Gen. J. B. Gordon, as brave a man as ever graced a battlefield, was ordered to bring up the rear which we did, skirmishing the greater portion of each day and marching at night to reach our army. On the afternoon of Friday, April 7, we fought our last battle known as Sailors Creek, near Farmville, Va. On Saturday there was very little firing during the day.

On Saturday night we camped near Appomattox court house. Early on Sunday morning we were ordered to fall in line crossed the creek near the village, passed through the town square distance, and formed line of battle along a hillside near a fence. Remaining there but a short time the sharpshooters were ordered to move forward. The command to which I belonged known as first battalion, North Carolina sharpshooters, composed of two companies, taken from the old 21st North Carolina regiment which when mustered into service had 12 companies, companies A and B, the company which I belonged composed that battalion commanded by Maj. R. E. Wilson who lost one of his legs on the morning of Sunday, April 2, in a charge. To make the story short, we lost six commissioned officers out of eight, and 60 per cent of our battalion.

"As I have already stated, the sharpshooters commanded as a whole by Major Devon, of South Carolina, passed on over the brow or crest of the hill. When we started down across the field the Union army threw out its line of sharpshooters which was almost equal to our line of battle. We moved forward quite a distance when we were ordered to halt.

"Immediately the news came down our line that we had surrendered and we were ordered to the rear only to find that our command had moved back and had stacked arms. Some were shedding tears, some were cursing and so on.

"I have related just a few things that happened 54 years ago today when one among the most noble, brave and honorable who being so greatly outnumbered, to save his own men, surrendered his shattered forces to General Grant, not whipped but overpowered."

DON'T SHOOT COCK ROBIN.

It is against the law to shoot robins this time of the year and it is also against the law to shoot firearms in the city limits. Friday a returned soldier was noticed shooting robins in the Jones field within the corporate limits and attention was called to it with the result that agents here of the Audubon Society gave warning that the shooting of robins must be stopped.

WINSTON-SALEM YOUNG MAN MEETS DEATH.

Clarence Hauser, aged 35, of 14th Street, Winston-Salem, was fatally injured Thursday night at 10 o'clock, when a motorcycle he was riding turned turtle this side of Thomasville. He was brought to the local hospital in an unconscious condition, dying a few minutes after reaching the hospital. Charles Marshall, a companion, of 11th Street, Winston-Salem, suffered a bruised leg and lacerations.

The two men who had been attending the carnival in Greensboro, came to High Point and went to Thomasville to see someone. It was on the return trip that the accident occurred, eye witnesses stating that Hauser was driving the motorcycle, tried to take a sharp curve in the road at too high speed. The motorcycle turned turtle, Hauser landing on his head and suffering a fractured skull. Marshall, who was in the sidecar, was thrown clear of the wreckage and was not seriously injured.
